Forecast For West Midlands
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Tuesday 11 May 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Remaining mostly showery over the next few days.

This Evening and Tonight:
Showers become less widespread through the evening, but the odd scattered shower remains possible overnight, especially in the north and west. Winds will steadily ease down. Minimum temperature 6 deg C (43 deg F).

Wednesday:
After a mostly dry start, another day of sunny spells and showers, these heavy and possibly thundery at times. Rain, occasionally heavy, moves in from the south through late evening. Maximum temperature 16 deg C (61 deg F).

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:
Showers or perhaps longer spells of rain, heavy at times, on Thursday, with some of this lingering into Friday. Sunshine and showers Saturday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.